

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

STEPHEN BÉLA VÁRDY is Professor of History at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. His wife ÁGNES HUSZAR VÁRDY is Professor Emerita of Literature at Robert Morris University, also in Pittsburgh. They have published widely on Hungarians in America, Hungarians in Soviet slave labour camps, and other subjects.

LESLIE LÁSZLÓ is Professor Emeritus of Political Science at the Loyola Campus of Montreal's Concordia University. His main field of interest and the focus of his publications have been the Churches in twentieth century Hungary.

SUZAN GLANZ is Professor of Economics at St. John's University in New York City. Her research and publications have focused on Hungarian economic history and the relationship between the European Union and Hungary. For many years now she has been Secretary-Treasurer of the Hungarian Studies Association.

MARK PITTAWAY is Lecturer in European Studies, Faculty of Arts, The Open University in the United Kingdom. His major research and publishing interest is the interactions of social groups and the state in mid-20th century Central Europe, with focus on Hungary and eastern Austria (the Burgenland).

ZSUZSANNA VARGA teaches history at Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest, Hungary. Her primary research field and the subject of her publications are the history of agriculture and agrarian policies in socialist Hungary from the late 1940s to the 1960s.

BEVERLY JAMES is Professor of Communication at the University of New Hampshire (Durham, New Hampshire). Her work on transformations in Hungarian media and culture since 1989 has appeared in several journal articles and a book.

JÁNOS KENYERES teaches literature and literary theory at Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest. He has published several papers and a book in these fields. In recent years he has been a visiting professor of Hungarian at the University of Toronto.

GÉZA JESZENSZKY is Professor Emeritus at Corvinus University in Budapest. He was Minister of Foreign Affairs in Hungary's first post-Communist government; later (1998-2002) he served as his country's Ambassador to the United States.