

THE MISSION OF OPUS ET EDUCATIO

Opus et Educatio is an online electronic periodical providing objective, up-to-date information for professional-academic intellectuals about national and international development processes of labour and education.

The papers published in the periodical contain professional reflections, analysis found suitable for publication by the Editorial Board based on correct peer reviews. The Editors make recommendations for publication prior to the publication of the papers taking into consideration the viewpoints of clarity and readability; the authors have the primary academic responsibility for the content.

Opus et Educatio is committed to academic values and quality, at the same time provides an opportunity for creative discussions of theoreticians, researchers, and the faculty of higher educational institutions to make the opinion of the professional-academic intellectuals available as widely as possible.

The periodical consciously provides an opportunity for and supports the publication of papers written by teachers of experience as well as by PhD applicants carrying out research work in the field of labour and education.

Opus et Education continuously endeavours to present, review and provide critical commentaries of national and international papers of significance, this way offering open discussions for the professional-academic public opinion.

Our online digital periodical, portal and all the services can be accessed by anybody without any restrictions on the principle of open access.