

Call for papers

Pro Publico Bono is a peer-reviewed journal four-monthly published by the University of Public Service, Budapest. It covers researches based on public law, social and political sciences and interdisciplinary approach that explore future alternatives for fostering sustainable and innovative societies, good governance and for strengthening nation states as well as the European and transatlantic cooperation facing technological, ecological and cultural disruption in the increasingly complex and ambiguous 21st century.

The primary objective of the journal is to become an international platform of the highest scientific and professional debate. The international scientific forum is open to high quality scientific publications from worldwide resources, to professional discourses, including a synthesis of scientific opinions and comparative research. The journal would focus on sustainable and innovative societies, good governance and building nation states. In terms of its topics and content, the journal would be primarily theoretical but would also leave room to analytical works on legal, social and political sciences as well as professional forums and book reviews.

Contributions can be submitted through the Open Journal System of the University of Public Service, which is accessible via the following link
